ABSTRACT

A method for genetic immunization comprises administering a highly active antiretroviral therapy to control viral replication, and then administering a transcutaneous DNA vaccine.

[illegible]